SILVER, COPPER AND LEAD.

Silver was quoted yesterday at $1.02 1/2 per ounce; copper at $14.75 per 100 pounds, and lead at $11.25 per 100 pounds.

ONTARIO, California, claims to have shipped over 500,000 pounds of raisins and dried grapes this season.

DOCTOR O'DONNELL has given up his contest for the office of Mayor of San Francisco. He will try again two years hence.

The Redlands Citograph is as nearly an approach to perfection as exists among the many excellent weekly newspapers of Southern California.

The Salt Lake Tribune has a style of editorial utterances that is both unique and forcible. In speaking of a more or less esteemed contemporary, the Tribune says: "That is the way a characterless assassin on a contemporary up town talks. No one on earth appreciates how manifold and measureless a liar he is any better than himself."

BARON DE ROTHSCHILD is reported as having recently stated his belief that the good monetary situation in France is due to bi-metalism, which causes that country, though in the midst of mono-metalist countries, to be a privileged one, inaccessible to disturbances in the gold market. "The resources of French savings are really marvelous," said the Baron; "England only having one metal, gold, cannot prevent the universe carrying it away, while France, with two metals, causes the public to be prudent."

Promotions in the subordinate grades of the army service are now made only after applicants have passed satisfactory examinations. To prevent possible discriminations between classes of officers, graduates of West Point are examined by graduates; candidates who were appointed from civil life, are examined by officers who in the same manner obtained their commissions, and volunteer applicants for promotion are examined by volunteer officers. Thus there is no danger of officers appointed from civil life getting cinched by academy martinet. Old army officers consider these examinations a good thing, in that aspirants must keep up their studies instead of bunning, if they would rise in rank.

AMERICA'S greatest evil at present is immigration of undesirable classes of population. The labor supply is already too large in those occupations that need simply muscle without any great amount of intelligence. The rabble that are now pouring in at New York, willing to work for simply enough to keep soul and body together, are therefore becoming more and more a menace to that free American labor that seeks to lay up a fund for old age, while maintaining in the community a decent position. The Pacific Coast, in demanding the exclusion of the Chinese, was the first to sound the note of alarm and it is gratifying to see that the East is now responding. The same class that so warmly espouse the cause of the Apache in Arizona are the same who are now advocating the "brotherhood of man" and the theory that the United States is the asylum for the oppressed of all nations. The theories may be substantially correct, but do not necessarily mean that the United States shall be considered as a waste barrel, into which shall be dumped all the refuse of humanity, the "oppressed" criminals and the besotted understratum of society throughout the world.

MONEY there is in the growing of citrus fruits, but all profit is not vested in them in this fair southern clime. Speaking of the experience of some tenderfoot in Southern California, the New York Tribune says: "The 'tenderfoot' was afflicted with a mania to own a vineyard or an orange grove; other things could be raised anywhere. 'Back East' they could grow potatoes and onions and cabbages. But it takes considerable money to start a vineyard or an orange grove, and when the period of hard times came, beginning about the spring of 1888, many people found themselves owners of more or less land. Those who had money set out their orchards and vineyards, but many of them could only follow the Chinaman's example and raise vegetables. Well, the results would make a Kansas or an Illinois farmer envious, and drive a New England farmer crazy. Potatoes have yielded from $500 to $1500 an acre, and so on with nearly all vegetables. Ranchers who last winter shipped peas and lettuce and string beans and such things East received such large prices that it would be useless to write the figures down; they would only be smiled at as details of a characteristic California story. But these things are written about and talked of, and the consequence is that everything indicates an unparalleled amount of immigration this winter. When John writes back to his old folks that his last strawberry or green pea crop returned him $2000, lots of trucks will be packed at once to make the journey to the Sunset Land. For a year the farmers of Southern California have enjoyed wonderful prosperity, and the result is that Los Angeles is today the busiest city of its size in the country."

INSPECTOR GENERAL BRECKINRIDGE of the regular army suggests the formation of an apprentice battalion as an adjunct to the service. The battalion would be composed of young men from 16 to 18 years old. The boy recruits would receive a thorough military training. At the same time they would be instructed in the rudiments of English education. At the end of their period of instruction they could enlist in the army or go back to civil life if they chose. The idea is to have the proposed apprentice battalion do for the arm what the training schools on board the United States school ships do for the navy. The large proportion of the graduates from the training regiment would prefer to go back to civil life. But the number that would join the regular army would be considerable. It would act as a valuable leaven in the ranks. The standard of intelligence and efficiency could hardly fail to be raised by the constant infusion of trained and educated recruits. General Breckinridge's scheme seems to be a good one. It would at least do no harm to try it.

Among the Government's strange sources of profit is that resulting from the destruction of paper money. Only the other day two trains met in a Kentucky tunnel, and for thirty hours the wreck burned. In the express car was an iron safe containing $1600 in cash and a lot of jewelry. It was all paper money, and was almost reduced to ashes for $700 was all the Redemption Division of the Treasury was able to get out of it in condition to redeem. On the early issues of fractional currency it is estimated the Government cleared $15,000,000, and the destruction of notes of larger denominations is estimated at something less than 1 per cent. A good deal of the money has been placed where it will never be recovered. Only a short time ago, on the body of a murdered man discovered near an Ohio town, was found a pocketbook filled with greenbacks that had to be sent to the Treasury for redemption, and it is estimated that many a snug sum lies molding in the grave.

Editors of Democratic contemporaries throughout the Territory are indignant that the McKinley bill has increased the price of many of their household necessities, such as sealins, silks, diamonds, foreign paintings and statuary, champagne and pote de foie gras. Too bad!

Brigham Young's Fortune.

C. W. Bennett, a lawyer of Salt Lake City, who was the attorney for the estate of Brigham Young, in a recent interview said: "Although Brigham Young was a fanatic, he was a most just man, and he left his property to be equally divided among his eighteen wives and their children. His nineteenth wife, Analliza, whom he never lived with, because she deceived him, he left nothing. He never recognized her, and always claimed to have but eighteen wives. His estate, when I came to settle it up, I found to be worth $1,200,000. A great many people thought his fortune would amount to much more than that, because it was believed he had a large account with the Bank of England. This was not true, however.

"Polygamy flourishes as much today as it ever did," he continued, "and it is increasing every year. About 3000 believers of the faith are imported annually, most of the number being Scandinavians.

"There are about 20,000 Mormons in the north of Mexico, at Chihuahua and other towns, and, if compelled, those in Utah will go to Mexico. The Mexican government owned Utah when it was settled by the Mormons and Utah remained a Mexican province until the treaty of 1847."
